Being Julia. (2004). Color. 104 mins. CC R. Video Released 2004. Directed by Istvan Szabo. Featuring Annette Bening, Miriam Margolyes, Bruce Greenwood, Jeremy Irons. A woman scorned unleashes her fury in this droll comedy based on a story by W. Somerset Maugham. Julia Lambert (Annette Bening) is a famous and well-respected actress, but though her life in the limelight seems glamorous, things are not going well for her off-stage. Julia's husband is unfaithful to her (and not especially discreet about it), her son is angry with her, and she's afraid she's losing her looks and allure as she advances further into middle age. In the midst of this, Julia meets a handsome and dashing young American named Tom, who is close friends with Julia's son. Tom makes no secret of his attraction to Julia, and the feeling is mutual, leading the two into a torrid affair. But, while Julia at first dives into this adulterous romance with little care for how it could affect her reputation, she becomes livid with rage when she learns that Tom is also involved with a younger actress, and is only using Julia to advance his own career in the theater. Julia plots an elaborate revenge against Tom in a scheme that will help her win back the pride and confidence life has recently stripped from her. Sony Pictures Home Entertainment. DVD. $26.96.

Martin Landau, Peter Graves, Barbara Bain, Peter Lupus, Greg Morris, Pernell Roberts. In "The Mercenaries," Phelps & Cinnamon impersonate African missionaries to meet a revolutionary colonel hiding a million dollars in plundered gold bars. Meanwhile, Barney & Willy ingeniously loot the gold from its seemingly impenetrable vault. When the colonel discovers his cache has disappeared, it is too late! In "The Exchange," the stakes have never been higher as Cinnamon is captured by a sadistic army commander determined to break her & discover her true identity. It appears that the only way to free Cinnamon is to surrender the enemy's top captured agent. But when the I.M.F. is on the case, nothing is as it seems. Paramount Pictures. VHS. Beyond the Sea. (2004). Color. 118 mins. CC PG13. Video Released 2005. Directed by Kevin Spacey. Featuring John Goodman, Kate Bosworth. Kevin Spacey serves as both director and star for this biopic based on the life and career of legendary entertainer Bobby Darin, which moves back and forth between his childhood and adult selves to tell the tale of his remarkable life. Born Bobby Cassotto and raised in the Bronx, young Bobby (played as a child by William Ullrich) was raised by his mother, Polly (Brenda Blethyn), his brother-in-law, Charlie (Bob Hoskins), and his sister, Nina (Caroline Aaron). At the age of 15, Bobby contracted a severe case of rheumatic fever, which was expected to take his life; while it left him with a weak heart, Bobby beat the odds and survived. Buoyed by a love of music passed along by his mother, Bobby learned to play several instruments and began singing as he recovered. Displaying a confidence and drive which stopped just short of arrogance, he adopted the stage name Bobby Darin and set his sights on becoming a star. After a string of hits as a rock & roll singer, Darin (played as an adult by Kevin Spacey) takes another gamble, and with the help of manager Steve Blauner (John Goodman) he reinvents himself as a supper-club vocalist in the manner of Frank Sinatra. All the more remarkably, he succeeds, and his swinging version of "Mack the Knife" tops the charts. Now a major singing star, Darin decides to take up acting; on the set of his first movie, he woos his female co-star Sandra Dee (Kate Bosworth), and despite the stern objections of her mother (Greta Scacchi), Bobby and Sandra wed. But after a string of successful movies for Dee and hit records and an Oscar nomination for Darin, the shifting tastes of the 1960s throw their careers off-track. Bobby cautiously embraces the new sounds of the day, but his old fans don't want to hear him cover Bob Dylan or the Rolling Stones, while the younger audience isn't interested in his new sound, leaving Darin in a difficult place to make his way back to stardom. Lion's Gate Publishing. DVD. $27.98.

Birth. (2004). Color. 100 mins. CC R. Video Released 2004. Directed by Jonathan Glazer. Featuring Nicole Kidman, Lauren Bacall, Danny Huston, Cameron Bright. Birth takes place in New York's Upper East Side, where Anna (Nicole Kidman), a 35-year-old widow, resides. Just as Anna has shaken off what she thought were the final remnants of her old life — she has even found love with a new man, Joseph (Danny Huston), whom she plans on marrying — Sean (Cameron Bright), a ten-year-old boy, comes into her life insisting that he is the reincarnation of her late husband. Though she initially brushes off the boy's claims as the result of a crush on her, his grave demeanor and uncanny knowledge of her life leads Anna through a self-reevaluation that not only threatens her marital plans with Joseph (Huston), but also strains her relationship with her mother, Eleanor (Lauren Bacall). New Line Home Video. DVD. $27.95.

Blade: Trinity. Video Released 2004. Directed by David S. Goyer Featuring Wesley Snipes, Kris Kristofferson, Triple H, Parker Posey, Jessica Biel. Wesley Snipes returns as legendary vampire hunter Blade in this, the third film inspired by the popular Marvel Comics character. A fearless warrior immune to vampires, Blade (Snipes) has become a hated enemy of the bloodsucking community, and as they gather in their desert compound, a group of vampires is plotting to eliminate Blade once and for all by turning the mortal community against him. The vampires have concocted a misinformation campaign that paints a picture of Blade as a ruthless murderer and has sent the FBI on the vampire hunter's trail, led by the relentless agent Cumberland (James Remar). At the same time, the vampires have brought their founding father, Dracula, back to his undead state, renaming him Drake (Dominic Purcell) and investing him with special powers that allow him to walk unharmed in daylight. After a dangerous encounter with Cumberland, Blade and his ally, Whistler (Kris Kristofferson), form an uneasy alliance with a scruffy team of human vampire slayers, the Nightstalkers, led by Hannibal King (Ryan Reynolds), and Whistler's daughter, Abigail (Jessica Biel. While Sommerfield (Natasha Lyonne), a biologist working with the Nightstalkers, researches a scientific answer to the vampire problem, Blade and his comrades take a more hands-on approach against Drake and his minions, including Danica Talos (Parker Posey), Asher (Callum Keith Rennie), and Grimwood (Triple H). Vacationing in the forest outside his native Seattle, city detective Daniel Pruitt is stunned when his wife Jessica is sexually assaulted. While driving her to the hospital, Daniel collides with a semi, whereupon Jessica insists that the driver was her assailant. Blinded by his rage, Daniel jumps out of his car and pummels the other driver into unconsciousness. Upon arriving at the E.R., however, the hysterical Jessica changes her story, claiming that she was attacked by the male nurse taking care of her. Already distraught over the possibility that he has beaten up the wrong man, Daniel is in no mood to discover that his victim has died — and that the dead man is the son of local sheriff Morgan McKenna, who has his own peculiar ideas about justice and retribution. Keeping mum about his involvement in the case, Daniel is placed in the awkward position of investigating the death of McKenna's son. And then, evidence is unearthed suggesting that Daniel may not be a murderer after all. Sony Pictures Home Entertainment. VHS.; DVD. $24.95.

Bottle Rocket. Color. 91 mins. R. Video Released Nov. 2008. Directed by Wes Anderson. Wes Anderson first illustrated his lovingly detailed, slightly surreal cinematic vision (with cowriter Owen Wilson) in this visually witty and warm portrait of three young misfits. Best friends Anthony (Luke Wilson), Dignan (Owen Wilson), and Bob (Robert Musgrave) stage a wildly complex, mildly successful robbery of a small bookstore, then go "on the lam." During their adventures, Anthony falls in love with a South American housekeeper, Inez (Lumi Cavazos), and they befriend local thief extraordinaire Mr. Henry (James Caan). Bottle Rocket is a charming, hilarious, affectionate look at the folly of dreamers, shot against radiant southwestern backdrops, and the film that put Anderson and the Wilson brothers on the map. Criterion Collection. DVD. (ISBN: 978-1-60465-058-7(3)) $39.95; (ISBN: 978-1-60465-092-1(3)) $39.95.

Boy of the Streets. Based on a story by Rowland Brown. (1937). Drama. B&W. 70 mins. Jackie Cooper, Maureen O'Connor, Marjorie Main. Cooper stars as Chuck Brennan, a ragged, cocky teen prankster & dropout who heads up a gang of delinquents on New York's Lower East Side. Chuck is confident that the father he worships, whom he brags is a "pretty big shot," will get him out of any jam he gets into. In reality, this role model is a snivelling, no-good political hack who has squeezed the spirit out of his world-weary, self-pitying mother. While the film is at times pleasingly sentimental, it ultimately succeeds as an unflinching expose of the manner in which urban poverty breeds crime, desolation & disease. Video Yesteryear. VHS. (Order #: 1725) $24.95.

Brahms: Symphony No. 4. Musical Concerts And Videos (Classical). Color. 88 mins. (Story of the Symphony Ser.). Conducted by Andre Previn. Brahms epitomizes the craftsmanship needed to write a great symphony. In a ballet or opera, the story, scenery, & costumes may distract the audience from the music. In a concerto, the brilliance of the soloist can mask flaws in the composition. But with a symphony, the work must be judged solely on its composer's ability. Brahms dared to write symphonies in the shadow of Beethoven, & succeeded. Public Media, Inc. (Home Vision). VHS, Hi-Fi Stereo. (Order #: STO04) $39.95.

Braveheart. (1925). Drama. Silent Films. B&W. 72 mins. Rod Le Racque, Lillian Rich, Robert Edeson, Tyrone Power, Jr., Sally Rand. Directed by Alan Hale, Sr. During the mid-19th century, the Indians of the Northwest signed a treaty with the United States government surrendering their lands but retaining their right to fish. Year after year, during the salmon run, they would head down the river to just the right spot for fishing in order to catch their winter's food supply. However, the white man, with his large nets & canneries, had been attempting to monopolize the wealth of the river. The film is fascinating on several levels as it offers an enlightened view of relations between Indians & whites. However, the scenario ultimately may serve as an expose of the manner in which Native Americans have been exploited by cutthroat white capitalists. Video Yesteryear. VHS. (Order #: 1846) $12.95.

Breakin' All the Rules. (2004). Color. 85 mins. CC PG13. Video Released 2004. Featuring Jamie Foxx, Gabrielle Union, Daniel Taplitz, Jennifer Esposito, Bianca Lawson, Morris Chestnut. A man who writes the book on ending a romance runs into rough sledding while starting a new one in this comedy. Quincy (Jamie Foxx) is a magazine editor whose life takes an unexpected turn for the worse when his fiancée, Helen (Bianca Lawson), decides to give him some interesting news at their engagement party — she's breaking up with him. A few days later, Quincy's boss, Phillip (Peter MacNichol), gives him the task of cutting manpower in his department by 15 percent; too emotionally beaten to fire anyone, Quincy responds by quitting his job. Deeply depressed, Quincy begins writing a letter to Helen to explain his feelings, but as he analyses his emotions, his notes take a different turn, and Quincy decides to write a book about how to painlessly break up with someone. The book becomes a smash best-seller, and Quincy's friends begin turning to him for advice on the subject of getting out of relations. Quincy's cousin Evan (Morris Chestnut) is eager to call things off with his girlfriend, Nicky (Gabrielle Union), and asks him to do the dirty work for him; however, Evan begins to have second thoughts when he discovers Quincy has fallen for her. Bridget Jones: The Edge of Reason. (2004). Color. 108 mins. CC R. (Dubbed: Spanish, French). Video Released 2004. Directed by Beeban Kidron. Featuring Renee Zellweger, James Callis, Gemma Jones, Jim Broadbent. Bridget Jones: The Edge of Reason picks up four weeks after the original film left off, with Bridget (Renée Zellweger) emotionally satisfied at long last with Mark Darcy (Colin Firth), her barrister boyfriend. Stability in Bridget's life, however, quickly becomes a contradiction in terms. Though Mark is openly supportive of Bridget's eccentricities — and there are many — she is nonetheless threatened by Mark's young, nubile intern, not to mention irked at finding out that he is, among other less desirable qualities in her eyes, a conservative voter. Complicating issues further is the reentrance of her ex-lover, Daniel Cleaver (Hugh Grant), whom Jones, perhaps mistakenly, thought she had finally gotten over. Before long, the situation escalates into another series of embarrassing circumstances for Bridget, who is faced once again with a crippling feeling of self-doubt and has only her diary and friends to combat it. Universal Studios Home Video, Inc. DVD. $29.98.

Chambers, Bree Turner. Whittier (Anne Judson-Yager) arrives at the fictional California State College hoping to join the national champion varsity cheerleading team. She meets up with her friend from cheerleading camp, Monica (Faune Chambers), and they're both impressive at the tryouts. Head cheerleader Tina (Bree Turner) is ready to ask them to join the team, but Dean Sebastian (Kevin Cooney) goes a step further, telling Tina that Whittier will be the next head cheerleader. This angers Tina's pal Marni (Joie Lenz), who had the position staked out, but Tina goes along with the plan, taking Whittier under her wing. Whittier meets Derek (Richard Lee Jackson), a campus deejay who immediately takes a shine to her. But Tina is very demanding and controlling. She warns Whittier that Derek is not the type of boy she should be dating. Monica is bothered by Tina's meddling, but Whittier momentarily lets her cheerleading ambition get the better of her, and breaks it off with Derek. Then Tina, upset with Monica's sassy attitude, forces Whittier to choose between her friendship and the squad. Whittier and Monica get fed up and quit the team, but Whittier's school spirit cannot be suppressed. With Monica's help, she gathers up the outcasts from the drama club, the dance club, and other groups that have lost their funding and forms a ragtag squad of her own, determined to battle the varsity squad for a spot at the national championship. Burden of Dreams. (1982). Color. 95 mins. (Criterion Collection). (English, Subtitled: English). Video Released 2005. Werner Herzog, Klaus Kinski. Directed by Les Blank. Contribution by Maureen Gosling. Narrated by Michael Goodwin. For nearly five years, acclaimed German filmmaker Werner Herzog desperately tried to complete one of the most ambitious and difficult films of his career - Fitzcarraldo, the story of one man's attempt to build an opera house deep in the Amazon jungle. Documentary filmmaker Les Blank captured the unfolding of this production, made all the more perilous by Herzog's determination to shoot the most daunting scenes without models or special effects, including a sequence requiring hundreds of natives to pull a full-sized, 320-ton steamship over a small mountain. The result is an extraordinary document of the filmmaking process and a unique look into the single-minded passion of one of cinema's most fearless directors. Public Media, Inc. (Home Vision). DVD. Bush Mama. (1976). Drama. 100 mins. Directed by Haile Gerima. Powerful drama of a black woman living on welfare in the Los Angeles ghetto, trying to care for her daughter after being stranded alone by her man's imprisonment for a crime he didn't commit. Succeeds in capturing the rich style of ghetto language & humor. Its street scenes, where outbursts of violence assume a fantasy-like power, alternate with fantasy scenes, which gain in reality from the juxtapisition. Narrative is loosely structured, flowing readily from real time to flashback, real life to nightmare. Facets Multimedia, Inc. VHS. (Order #: S15644) $59.95.

Cabin Fever. (2002). Color. 92 mins. CC R. Video Released 2002. Directed by Eli Roth. Featuring Rider Strong, Jordan Ladd, Joey Kern, Cerina Vincent, James DeBello. Five college buddies retreat to the woods for a little R & R and end up getting a horrific lesson in infectious disease in this low-budget shocker. Cabin Fever stars Rider Strong as the geeky Paul, who hopes to settle in around the campfire with his brash buds Jeff (Joey Kern) and Bert (James DeBello), and make the moves on the nubile-but-shy Karen (Jordan Ladd). Unfortunately, a wayward, forest-dwelling vagrant (Arie Verveen) stumbles into their lives, his skin badly desiccated by a mysterious virus. Fearing for their own lives, the quintet decide to do away with the man, with little success: He stumbles away from the campsite and into a nearby stream, where his disease quickly infects the local water supply. It isn't long before the oblivious co-eds get a taste of the man's illness, and in their desperation, each learns that he or she will stop at nothing to survive. Lion's Gate Publishing. DVD. $26.99; VHS.

Capturing the Friedmans. (2002). Color. 107 mins. NR. (Subtitled: Spanish, French). Video Released 2002. Directed by Andrew Jarecki. Featuring Arnold Friedman, Elaine S. Friedman, Jesse Friedman, Seth Friedman, David Friedman. Arnold and Elaine Friedman were a seemingly typical couple living in Great Neck, NY, in the 1980s. Arnold was an outgoing and well-liked schoolteacher with an interest in electronics who also ran a private computer school out of their home. Elaine, a reserved but caring woman, helped look after the couple's three sons, Jesse, Seth, and David. All appeared to be happy in their lives until November 1987, when police raided the Friedman home after Arnold and Jesse were accused of multiple counts of child molestation. A search revealed that Arnold owned a sizable collection of child pornography, and he confessed to some of the charges placed against him; Jesse, however, firmly insisted he was innocent. As the investigation against the Friedmans went on, public opinion regarding the case became more and more heated, but not all of the testimony against Arnold and Jesse matched up, and some began to wonder just how many of the charges filed against the family had merit. Remarkably enough, in the midst of these crises which threatened to destroy the family from within, the Friedmans continued to take part in one of their favorite pastimes — shooting home videos of their day-to-day lives, offering a fly-on-the-wall look at a family struggling (and often failing) to hold themselves together in the wake of unthinkable accusations. Award(s): Academy Award, Best Documentary, 2003. HBO Video, Inc. DVD. $29.98.
